

Ann Cole

Memorial services for Ann Lee Woodward Cole, 78, of Tucson, Ariz. will be at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Lamesa Church of Christ.

Cole died Sunday, Oct. 10, 1999, in Tucson, Ariz.

She was born June 3, 1921, in Santa Anna, daughter of A.C. and Ina Woodward. She moved to Lamesa with her family in 1922. The Woodwards were involved in several diversified businesses, including cattle ranching, farming, real estate and raising thoroughbred horses. An avid rider, she competed in barrel racing and other horsemanship events. She was named Miss Lamesa in 1938.

She attended the University of Southern California and, after a brief interruption during World War II, earned her bachelor's and master's degrees in education from Arizona State University. She taught school for 16 years in the Chandler, Ariz. school district. She and her husband later moved to Tucson and traveled extensively. She was an active member of the Mountain Avenue Church of Christ in Tucson.

Survivors include her husband; two daughters, Julie Hecker and Glenda Woodward; and seven grandchildren.

The family suggests memorial donations to the Lamesa Church of Christ.
